

Umbert

by Gary Cangemi

A self-syndicated freelance cartoonist from Scranton, Pennsylvania, Gary Cangemi is the creator of the pro-life comic strip Umbert the Unborn. In a career spanning 30 years, Gary has enjoyed a diverse background in human services, advertising, political cartooning, newspaper writing and editing, cartoon licensing, and graphic design. A committed advocate of the right to life movement, Gary has published numerous editorials and cartoons on pro-life issues. In 2001, he launched Umbert the Unborn, a pro-life comic strip about a pre-born baby who joyfully anticipates life after birth while celebrating life in the womb which now appears weekly in the National Catholic Register and over 120 publications with over 700,000 readers in the U.S. and abroad. His first book, Umbert the Unborn, A Womb With A View, was released in 2003 by Circle Press.

Gary has been a speaker and workshop presenter at numerous pro-life events including the National Right to Life Convention.

UMBERT THE UNBORN™

A WOMB WITH A VIEW

A Workshop Presented By Gary Cangemi

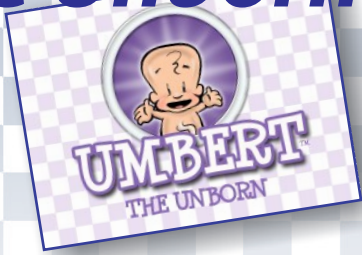

PROGRAM COST

Mr. Cangemi will travel anywhere in the continental U.S. and present his workshop for a modest fee of $1500 plus the cost of travel and lodging.

Gary is also available to speak at dinners, conventions, pro-life rallies and other events. Call for availability and fees.

The Unborn Child Finally Has a Voice of His Own!

Gary Cangemi is taking his cartoon creation, Umbert the Unborn, on the road for presentation to groups and organizations interested in pro-life issues. Now in its fifth year of national syndication, Umbert the Unborn is winning hearts and minds across the country with its gentle, compassionate and funny message of hope for unborn children. Umbert is a thought-provoking celebration of life, brought to life by its creator, pro-life cartoonist Gary Cangemi.

Gary will delight and inspire young and old alike with a personal and colorful presentation of his cartoons and the story of how his creation came to life. The cartoons themselves will be a springboard to the discussion of ethical, political and cultural issues affecting the abortion debate. Gary will involve participants in the creative process as well by leading the audience in the creation of a new Umbert cartoon that will actually be published. Gary will demonstrate how participants can unleash their own creativity and use it to promote and advance the "Culture of Life." Finally, Gary will wrap it all up with a friendly game of "Unborn Babies in Jeopardy," Umbert's favorite game show.

Gary Cangemi will also be on hand afterwards to sign his new book, "Umbert the Unborn, A Womb With A View," his first collection of Umbert cartoons, for those participants who wish to purchase a copy.

Program Length: The presentation is designed to run 90 minutes, however, it can be adapted to run longer or shorter based on the time requirements of the sponsor or it can be broken into separate workshops. It can also be adapted to both youth and adult audiences.

Program Contents:

Introduction: A Star is Unborn-How Umbert was Conceived.

Gary tells the story of his struggles as a political cartoonist and writer, and how God inspired him to focus his creative abilities in a positive direction, giving "unbirth" to the world's most loveable pro-life cartoon character.

The Umbert Cartoons

Gary presents a selection of Umbert's best, most provocative and poignant cartoons from the first five years of publication. These are shown in color in a Power Point presentation with commentary by the artist.

Creative Session: Let's Write an Umbert!

Gary leads the participants in the creation of a new Umbert cartoon which will appear in a future edition of the National Catholic Register and on www.catholic.net with credit given to the sponsoring group.

Unleashing Your Creativity

Having worked the group into a creative frame of mind, Gary will then offer inspiration and suggestions on how participants can use their own creative abilities to promote the "Culture of Life" in their communities.

Unborn Babies in Jeopardy! The Game Show

Time permitting, Gary will end the session with another audience participation activity, a game of "Unborn Babies in Jeopardy," Umbert's favorite game show, taken right from the comic strip. Participants will test their pro-life knowledge with questions designed to reinforce important facts and issues concerning fetal development, the pro-life movement and the abortion debate.
